

MAR-K

TAILGATE COVERS & WELD-INS

Louvres are punched in many of MAR-K parts like rear pans and tailgate covers using this louvre press.

FULL COVER -

- The full tailgate cover is made of electro-galvanized steel and covers the entire outside portion of the tailgate.
- MAR-K designed the full covers to perfectly match the body lines of each specific truck. The full cover will give your truck the custom SMOOTH look.
- Tailgates with latch handles will need a handle relocator kit in order to open the tailgate from the inside of the bed.
- The full cover is available smooth, bowtie embossed, or with louvres. It is available for many GM, Ford and Dodge trucks.
- Made by MAR-K in Oklahoma City, USA!

WELD-IN PANEL -

- This is a panel, also made of electro-galvanized steel, that is designed to cover the indented portion of the tailgate to give it a smooth look.
- MAR-K offers the weld-in panel as an alternative to the full tailgate cover.
- For some GM trucks, the weld-in panel may be ordered with a handle hole cut out to retain the use of the latch handle from the outside of the tailgate.
- A completely smooth weld-in panel may also be used with a MAR-K handle relocator kit to provide a smooth outer surface with access to the latch handle from the inside of the tailgate. See page 74.

TECH TIP: Full tailgate covers and weld-in panels are installed by welding. Full covers curve up over the top of the tailgate and down under the bottom. The weld-in panels weld on to the tailgate beginning at the top of the indented area (usually the location of the handle). Some panels curve under the bottom of the tailgate, while others insert into the indentation only. This depends on the shape and location of the indentation on the tailgate.
